We send our profound condolences send our profound condolences to the victims and their families. All of our countries have suffered from the impact of terrorism; those responsible have no respect for human life. We are united in our resolve to confront and defeat this terrorism that is not an attack on one nation but on all nations and on civilised people everywhere. We will not allow violence to change our societies or our values, nor will we allow it to stop the work of this summit. We will continue our deliberations in the interests of a better world. Here at this summit, the world's leaders are striving to combat world poverty and safe and improve human life. The perpetrators of today's attacks are intent on destroying human life...." BLAIR continues "...The perpetrators of today's attacks are intent on destroying human life. The terrorists will not succeed, today's bombings will not weaken in any way our resolve to uphold the most deeply held principles of our societies and to defeat those who would impose their fanaticism and extremism on all of us. That is to intimidate people and to scare them and frighten them, to stop them going about their normal business. Obviously, people will be concerned and anxious, of course they will. It's important we give as much information as we can. On the other hand, it's important also that we respond by keeping to our normal lives and doing what we want to do"                      Warren Street                      ms underground worker with loud hailer directs commuters home Is cordoned off Warren Street Shepherds Bush                      Is cordoned off Shepherds Bush Is police car, lights flashing, drives towards cam cs police cordon tape ms group of police officers, relaxing around police van
